The Borderlands / Bhote Koshi

2 Days plus Depart Kathmandu

The Bhote Koshi is by far one of the most exhilarating, adrenaline pumping two-day trips found anywhere. If you have never rafted before, this is an ideal introductory trip with its stunning location, thrilling drops, and unusual limestone rock formations. Drawing its amazing power from high up in Bhote Tista's river, it tumbles into Nepal through breathtaking gorges. Our staging site is at the Borderlands, an exclusive riverside resort. Being the highest launching point on the river, it allows for an extra 3 km of whitewater rap. The Bhote Koshi begins with a two and a half hour drive from Kathmandu to Lamasingu Dam. Then, we raft downstream for a training camp-rafting trip that lasts four hours. At the conclusion of the trip, the team drives to the Borderlands Resort where hot shower, chilled Beer, soothing Music, and home cooked meal will be waiting. After an night at the Borderlands you start rafting, beginning immediately with a series of technical rapids that require full attention and commitment. After a full day, we reach the take-out at Lamasingu Dam. We recommend a combination of Bhote Koshi rafting trip with optional days spent at the Borderlands, Adventure Centre, Asia. Post the time reading, listening to the sounds of the river or engaging in an adventure activity. Truly a magical place, it is located just south of the Tibetan border. Built on beautifully crafted, sprawling terraces alongside the river, with traditional thatched safari style tents, this certainly is an enchanting hideaway.

Trishuli: A Blast at the Monsoon Flows 2 Days Depart Kathmandu

During the monsoon season, this classic river takes on a whole new meaning. Huge runoffs make the river swell and shear like an immense, roaring flock of churning oxen, creating whitewater like it has never been seen before. When the rain tapers off, the water is gentler and humlike a baby. The close proximity to Kathmandu makes Trishuli a much preferred short trip for rafters, both beginners and advanced.

Rafting and the Environment

Nepal with its massive mountain peaks and impressive topography, is actually a very fragile environment. At Ultimate Descents Nepal, our lives have revolved around the few flowing rivers. We feel an increased responsibility to protect and preserve these wild places. Not only do we leave every campsite cleaner than when we arrived, we take all necessary steps to protect Nepal's rivers and the people who live along them. In association with the non-profit Nepal River Conservation Trust, we run a yearly conservation trip on one of Nepal's classic rivers. Similar to our regularly scheduled trips, these expeditions have the added bonus of incorporating conservation and education opportunities. The entire proceeds from this river journey is contributed to the Trust. www.nepalriver.org.np

General Information

On the river: There are no rules to running rivers. To enjoy, feel and learn, we request that you be flexible and open to the ever changing situations. We rise with the sun, eat a hearty breakfast, load the rafts and begin our day. On the river, we paddle hard through countless rapids and cruise the water in between. Lunch is alongside the river on a sandy beach around no on. A typical day consists of about 4-6 hours spent on the river. Time dependent upon our choice of spectacular riverside campsites.

What we provide: The most important thing that we provide is our two decades of experience running professional river expeditions in Nepal and around the world. In addition, we also provide professional whitewater guides, private transportation, permits, permits, all meals that are hygienically prepared, state-of-the-art equipment: life jackets, helmets, wetsuits, dry bags for gear, tents and camera barrels. NOT included: Bottled or alcoholic beverages, insurance cost and expenses of a personal.

Physical Fitness: You do not have to be an athlete to join our trips. A reasonable level of fitness is recommended though, as it will aid in the enjoyment of your adventure. However, we do suggest good swimming ability, although non swimmers can also be accommodated. Our high buoyancy life jackets and helmets mean that there is little chance of getting in trouble, should you fall in.

Safety: Safety is the number one priority at Ultimate Descents Nepal and our outstanding safety records prove just that. To ensure a safe trip, we employ some of the world's most experienced rafting guides. Aside from the formal qualifications in Swift Water Rescue Techniques and Wilderness First Aid, our guides have decades of their lives learning and running whitewater. All major rapids are scouted prior to any run. Safety kayakers accompany every expedition, helping swimmers out of trouble. You are never alone.
